

Castello di Magona , Tuscany & Umbria

UNDER THE TUSCAN SUN

Castello di Magona is a grandiose castle majestically nestled on the Etruscan Coast renowned for its naturally stunning beaches and succulent green pine woods. Castello di Magona built during early 16th century is the former residence of Leopold II, Grand Duke of Tuscany. It enjoys a spellbinding location between the Tuscan provinces of Siena and Lucca known for premium quality wine production. Moreover the influence of Renaissance heritage evident in its art, culture, cuisine and lifestyle adds to the magnetism of this captivating chalet. In fact it is a spectacular location where the sea and hilly slopes, art and culture, history and traditions blend exceptionally in a harmonious fashion.

Castello di Magona stands impressively at the end of a lane bordered with pine and cypress trees that lead to ostentatious gates and a luscious garden. The Castle boasts of ten grand bedrooms- four double bedrooms, five suites and "Gran Duca"- a more opulent suite. All the bedrooms are en suite and air-conditioned; besides they are appointed with 21st century luxuries including mini-bars, TV, telephone, satellite and safe deposits. The entire chalet is complemented with flamboyant furnishings, antique furniture, frescoes, meticulously adorned ceilings and suave upholstery.

The chalet features three superbly decorated sitting rooms, a bright dining room, a bar room with fireplace, a TV room, a well-stocked reading room, among others. However the most attractive part of this chalet is the swimming pool overlooking a terraced olive orchard while the poolside is flanked with a fitness corner, Jacuzzi, changing rooms and a toilet.
